I don't know about you, but I feel I am the complete package, when it comes to the O gauge world of trains. I've got all the bases covered... significant real railroading knowledge, I'm highly intelligent and I'm open-minded... when it comes to new things and possess a willingness to learn, I've built up a superb O gauge collection, know how to make an idea come to life, skilled with various hand and power tools, keen understanding of human dynamics and have a way with people, possess an excellent sense of humor, capable and willing to stand up for my beliefs; and I lead, I don't follow and I'm willing to share...

Speaking of sharing, here's a little gift of information for those that hate dealing the batteries found in some locomotive models -

All but one of my MTH locomotives, have NI-CD 2.4V rechargeable batteries in them. The other unit has a 8.4 Ni-Cd rechargeable battery in it.

In 2010, I purchased a number of BCR 2's(battery component replacement devices) and I was waiting for the day one of my locomotives batteries needed to be replaced.

That day came a few weeks ago, and I got to try one of my BCR 2's. It was a fairly simple process to remove the old 2.4V rechargeable battery and replace it with a 3 volt BCR 2. I then put the locomotive on the track powered up my DCS system, waited for approximately one minute, that's required... Wayne can tell you why, then turned on the BCR 2 equipped locomotive.

I'm pleased to say it worked flawlessly, just as Wayne said it would back in 2010. I called Wayne up and told him I was very impressed with his product, the BCR 2's; and I ordered some more of them and a BCR for the 8.4V unit.

BTW, for those that don't know... Wayne developed the BCR/BCR 2 battery replacement devices, and he holds the patents for them.

In case you are interested -

Wayne's company is - J and W Electronics
427 Sarah Woods Dr.
Red Lion, Pa. 17356
717-417-2820

and he sells the 8.4V(basically, 9 volt) BCR for $24.95 and the 2.4V(basically, 3 volt) BCR 2 for $19.95.

NOTE: I have no affiliation with Wayne or his company, I just like his products. They do what they are supposed to do!

I was sorely tempted to delete VOX's masturbatory first paragraph, but that would be too easy and would deprive others of the opportunity to comment (and have some fun) on this steamy summer day.

Rich and I will discuss VOX's future participation here tomorrow morning, if he's in the office. Between his King Air pilot and 675 engineer duties, I sometimes have a hard time keeping track of his schedule.

Meanwhile, have fun, but do keep it clean and civil...please!

The nice thing about my full packageness... is that it all comes naturally.

I just accept it. It's not a big deal to me.

Dear Vox-Rick,

I am relatively new on this forum, but I sense from your writing style, that you feel under appreciated?

Perhaps, you could "tone-down" the braggadocio? From my perspective, it appears a little too much....From the other, more experienced members it must seem juvenile.

I don't know, it seems that the more experienced OGR members need to register their opinions here!

That's about all you can do Rick. But it can be a burden sometimes.
