O Scale Sinclair® Gas Station (275-9044)

This is a perfect structure for that odd spot where you have too much empty space, but lack room for a full-sized building. The office is just 1-¼ inches deep, but the front design belies that. The steep roof connects with a large overhang, masking the shallow nature of the structure. The front has Sinclair® graphics and signage.

Two old-school gas pumps are placed between the supports for the roof, and in the background you can see a container for Sinclair® products, a toolbox, cans, and a Sinclair® sign with iconic dinosaur. There is a taller sign, evoking memories of gasoline brands of the past, without internal lighting, but just a heavy painted sign that might move a bit in the breeze.

This structure features a pretty impressive fuel truck, and it is parked in front of the garage door. There are several Sinclair® logos on the 1956 model truck. When power is applied, the office and the truck lights come on.
